10 things you wish your dad had told you about men...

1

They'll always view any shopping bag you bring into the house with an air of suspicion. Especially now you can even buy killer dresses at the supermarket!

2

They don't understand how to work your new phone any better than you do, but it's easier to let them pretend.

3

Guys are secretly jealous of all the other men in your life – even spotty Neville from the post room.

4

A man may have the culinary skills of Jamie Oliver when you start dating, but a few months later he'll have developed amnesia and forgotten what goes in an omelette.

5

No need to call a doctor – the colds men get will always be a much fiercer and deadlier version of yours.

6

Not every guy is born with the gene that makes him good at DIY. But they can all pull a face that says, 'Can't you see I'm busy?' when you ask them how they're getting on.

7

If you've missed the last bus home after a night out with friends, any boyfriend worth his salt will come and pick you up – but, like your dad, don't expect him to be happy about it.

8

When they introduce you to their best friend, this is actually code for 'I really like you', not 'I'm bored of your company and want to spend time with someone else who drinks pints!'

9

No matter how much you push them, no man can explain why they all find This Morning's Fern Britton strangely attractive.

10

While you 'go to the gym', guys 'train'. Quite what for will always remain a mystery.
